

HONORS PROGRAM
SPRING SEMESTER COURSES
2017

COLQ 1030, The Quest for Answers: Intro to Research Methods.

This seminar seeks to help students develop an understanding of the research process as it is carried out within and across scholarly disciplines, as well as the broad ethical implications of academic scholarship. Coursework involves readings on theoretical issues in academic scholarship as well as exercises and activities designed to help students identify areas of personal interest for future research and familiarize themselves with campus resources that facilitate undergraduate research.

Faculty "Ways to Know" Seminars

COLQ 2010. Quest for Research

This seminar continues the discussions begun in COLQ, but now geared directly towards helping students develop — with faculty advice — their own scholarly and research directions. Special attention is paid to the connections between research plans and Study Abroad opportunities, as well as the links of those opportunities to post-graduate plans, including Fulbright and other scholarships, and Graduate School applications.

COLQ 3050-01. Global Cultural Awareness: Pre-Departure Seminar

This seminar is designed to give students the skill set to capitalize from the outset on the experiences, network connections, and academic environment that their particular exchange experience will offer. Prior to departure for study abroad, students will develop a Service-Learning or Internship project to be conducted while abroad that will function as a point of class discussion for the following course taken while abroad.

COLQ 3050-02. Global Cultural Awareness: Cultural Engagement

This course is to be taken during the semester abroad. Students in programs around the world will reflect on their experiences abroad by combining classroom learning with internship experiences and hands-on application assignments designed to explore intercultural learning and to deepen adaptation skills while abroad.

COLQ 4013. Honors Thesis Boot Camp: A Workshop to Develop your Honors Thesis Prospectus

This workshop is designed to help honors students prepare for the thesis they will write during their senior year, and to take best advantage of the resources available at Tulane. The honors thesis is an opportunity to do original research on a topic of the student's choosing and to write an outstanding thesis that best displays one's skills in investigation, critical thinking, and communication.
